LOOK for this triangle before you buy any heater.

It is the trademark of the latest model of the Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater.

It is the sign of the greatest improvements ever made in oil heating devices.

The Perfection Heater, as now made, gives more heat, holds more oil, is better made and works better than any other heater on the market.

It has a wide, shallow oil font, which allows the oil to pass readily up the wick and insures reliable, unchanging flame and heat, whether the font is full or nearly empty.

The Perfection is smokeless, because the patent locking flame-spreader prevents the wick being turned up high enough to smoke. It is easy to re-wick, because the carrier and wick are combined—just turn out the old and slip in the new.

Indicator tells how much oil is in the font. Filler plug is pushed in like a cork—no screw, no thread to wear. Attractive latticed window frame.

The Perfection Heater is finished in vitreous turquoise-blue enamel or plain steel drums; looks well, lasts well, easy to carry wherever wanted.

There is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well-Earned Reputation

For months Barre readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. What other remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit?

C. A. Churchill, 35 Merchant street, Barre, Vt., says:

"I used one box of Doan's Kidney Pills and they benefited me so greatly that I continued until all symptoms of kidney complaint had disappeared. It is now a long time since I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. I have several occasions since I have taken this remedy with good results. I have often advised a trial of Doan's Kidney Pills to friends and acquaintances whom I have heard complaining of backache. I think that Doan's Kidney Pills are a remedy which is certainly worthy of endorsement."

IOWA PRODUCES $13,000,000 IN COAL.

Average Price a Ton in 1912 Was $1.80—Total Output Over 7,000,000 Tons.

The coal miners of Iowa during 1912 produced 7,289,529 short tons of coal, valued at $12,152,088, against 7,331,648 tons, valued at $12,663,507 in 1911, according to figures compiled by Edward W. Parker, of the United States geological survey, in cooperation with the state. The increase in 1912 was 42,119 short tons, but that the smaller tonnage was due to the labor and car shortage and not to any falling off in demand is shown by the fact that the value increased $488,581. The average price per ton advanced from $1.72 in 1911 to $1.80 in 1912.

The number of men employed in the mines in 1912 was 16,570, who worked an average of 188 days; the average production by each man being 445 tons for the year or 2.31 tons a day.

There were over 50 per cent. fewer deaths in the coal mines of Iowa in 1912 than in 1911, the United States bureau of mines reporting 10 men killed, against 40 the preceding year.

The coal fields of Iowa occupy the central and southern portions of the state. They have a total area of approximately 20,000 square miles, of which about 13,000 square miles is considered as workable under present conditions, and most of the remainder possesses potential value for the future. The coal beds as a rule are not thick, the thickest, in the Des Moines section, averaging about 5 feet. The coal is of noncoking bituminous grade, somewhat high in sulphur, but makes a fair steaming fuel. In the vicinity of Centerville the coal is regular and persistent but is not over 30 inches in thickness. It has, however, a strong roof that furnishes ideal conditions for long wall mining.

Iowa probably ranks second among the states west of the Mississippi river in order of priority as a coal producer. At the time of taking the United States census for 1840 Iowa and Missouri were the only states west of the Mississippi in which any coal production was reported. Missouri being credited with an output of nearly 10,000 tons and Iowa with 400 tons.

Unpique Klem is said to be the highest paid umpire in the business, receiving $4,000 per season. A high tribute was paid to Klem by Plank and Bender, the Macken pitchers. They say that he did not make a single mistake on balls and strikes in the games they pitched in the world's series.

TO PROMOTE MINING.

Director of U. S. Geological Survey Addresses Mining Congress.

The disposition of the natural resources on the public domain was one of the principal subjects under discussion at the sessions of the American mining congress in Philadelphia, Oct. 20 to 24. Director George Otis Smith, of the United States Geological Survey, in his contribution to this discussion stated that both advances in public opinion and changes in economic conditions have placed demands upon legislation, for the mineral laws of 20, 40, or 50 years ago cannot meet the requirements of to-day. "To illustrate this point," he said, "the coal mined west of the Mississippi river in 1873 amounted to less than 2,000,000 tons, but last year it was over 58,000,000 tons. The oil production in the public land states in 1897 was 2,000,000 barrels and last year 141,000,000 barrels, yet 1873 and 1897 are the dates of the latest federal enactments providing for the acquisition of coal and oil lands, respectively. Here are some infant industries that have grown up and deserve laws to fit.

Mining a Public-Service Business.

"Regarding the future status of mining on the public lands, the following propositions are believed to stand out plainly: The mining men, like the rest of the people, will see that this big productive business belongs in the public-service class. Because its products are so largely necessities of life, the mining industry will be regulated by the people. The control of public mineral lands will be exercised largely through a leasing system, simply because in this way the public owner and private operator can best co-operate, and the purpose of this sympathetic co-operation will be to lower costs of production in order to permit reasonable prices to the consumer, and at the same time provide fair wages to the mine work and adequate profits to the capitalist and operator.

"The new laws need to recognize every factor in the complex task of taking something out of the ground and making it useful. Every man who has a part in this undertaking, from prospector to ultimate consumer, has his rights and these rights must be recognized, measured, and protected. All these men are in reality partners in the enterprise.

ALTITUDES IN MISSOURI.

Seven Hundred Exact Elevations Contained in Bulletin.

An interesting series of reports that are being published by the United States geological survey are those containing the results of spirit leveling. One of these reports is devoted to work in the state of Missouri from 1897 to 1909, the work from 1907 to 1909, inclusive, having been done in cooperation with the state. Many controversies as to the exact elevation of important points in the state may be decided through the medium of this report, published as bulletin 459. For instance, the highest point in the city of St. Louis is described as follows:

Kirkwood, southeast abutment of bridge across Missouri Pacific Railroad tracks, south of Main street; aluminum tablet stamped "648 St. Louis," 647,915 feet.

The aluminum tablet referred to is 3 1/2 inches in diameter and one-fourth inch thick, and is cemented in a drill hole in the abutment of the bridge. The number stamped on the bench mark is the elevation of the nearest foot as determined by the level man. Nearly 800 of such bench marks have been set in the state and are described in bulletin 459. Engineers and others who are required to perform work where the exact elevation of the starting point must be known find these bench marks and the spirit-level bulletins of the survey very useful. A copy of the report may be obtained free on application to the director of the geological survey, Washington, D. C.
